Germany's first real official peace proposals are couched in terms just like the old unregener-ated Germany before the war.

But Germany will not find old unsuspecting foes to swallow her "scraps of paper" promises, and allow her to get in a German-made peace.

The Germans are now very willing to evacuate French and Belgium territory.

Only because they are being kicked out.

Britain, France, and America declare that they cannot trust an enemy which does not regard sacred obligations.

Nothing but a crushing military defeat will bring Germany to time, and make peace possible.
And she knows that Foch's knock-out blow is relentlessly
following closely at her heels.

One paragraph in the German peace note says, "Germany, requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land and water and the air."

Requests! Germany requests!

The National News (London, Eng.) expresses it right, when it says: "Apparently the Potsdam powers failed to realize that they are not and never again likely to be in a position to suggest any conditions. The only peace possible is that dictated by the Allies."

The Kaiser has been figuring all along in getting a place in the sun.

He'll be able to get his place
now—on the Island of St. Helena but his "sun" will be a total eclipse.

The sending of Germany's last note is now blamed on to Hindenburg.

Poor old Hindenburg! He made a terrible bungle of his famous line, and his peace note is bigger bungle still.

But fancy Hindenburg or any body else sending a peace note without the consent of the Kaiser
—the hypocritical old bluffer

Some of the members (women)
of the Next-of-Kin organization of Calgary "went over the top"
at each other, one day last week.

It has often been remarked that the most difficult squabbles to patch up are family ones, and the "Next-of-Kin" seems no exception.

Learning Things

THESE are at least a few things that the kaiser has learned during this war that he so readily started, that, probably, had he known before, he might have hesitated before embarking upon the present disastrous war
for himself and the fatherland.

First. That his huge army, although very powerful and trained for 40 years, up to the last minute in modern warfare and equipment, is not invincible.

2nd. That a bunch of shopkeepers, shoemakers, farmers, tailors, and other industrial pursuits, after a few months training, and greatly out-numbered by his hosts, have been able to soundly

thrash and smash his "invincible"
army of thoroughly trained men.

3rd. That the Allies have an unlimited number of reserves,
and that their armies are daily
growing larger and stronger;
while his own army is daily
getting less and weaker.

4th. That France has produced a Foch that has out-generated and out-maneuvered the best strategist he can produce, even his wooden god Hindenburg, and all his other bunch put together.

5th. That the little contemptible British army of shopkeepers are walloping him and his conceited army back home on a double trot.

6th. That because he knew it would have been impossible for him—although all-powerful as he was—to move millions of men across the Atlantic and ready for the firing line in a few months,
therefore, it would be impossible for the Yankees to do it, and he concluded the Allies would be blasted before the Yankees could get a look in. But the Yankees did what his All Highest couldn't do.

7th. That the Yankees are not wind-bugs, as he sneeringly called them, but the genuine article, as his invincible army and he have found out.

8th. That he now knows that his divine right to rule the world
bunkum was only a pipe-dream —caused by diseased brain—and that his chances of ruling even his own fatherland aren't worth a "scrap of paper."

9th. That ruling by might is not right, and has proven disastrous to him.

10th. That All Mighty as he believed himself to be, he has a whole lot to learn from Great Britain, that only right, freedom and justice can win the love and respect of a nation and peoples.

11th. That German kultur, as that—and practiced during this way, could only have been inspired and concocted by the devil himself.

12th. And that the Allies have learned that the kaiser is an old hypocritical bluffer and a conceited empty wind-bag, from first to last and all the time.

every year

Every New Machine

you bought this year costs nearly or quite double what the same machine cost you three years ago.

Repairs for old machines are equally as high.

These new high costs cut into your profits
no matter what you get for your products.

And a good deal of that high cost can be avoided. Your machines can be made to last and do good work for 3 to 5 years longer

A Simple Shed for Storage

A few pounds or grease, also a quart or two of paint will save the cost of the shed in one year or two at the outside.

The shed will last for years, and put a nice bunch of money into your bank account each year.

Build it now and begin this cost cutting and profit-making at once.

Plans free—low figures on material and quick service.

Sacred Concert at Cereal

Langford News

The people of this district are now appreciating the work which was done by the government on the main road going to Chinook,
in township 25 range 7.

Red Cross social and dance
was held at Langford school house, on Friday, the 11th inst.
Mr. L. W. Spreiter acted as chairman in a very able manner.
Much credit is due Miss Mamie Swanson (the teacher) in preparing the program of concert. The kiddies did themselves proud.
The sum of $69.75 was realized
for the Red Cross, and we plan
on organizing a Red Cross society for this district in the near future.

Two merchants were fined $100 and costs for first offence for not selling substitute with flour in Calgary, and another one

Negro In the War is Loyal to United States

Has Earned the Right of full Citizenship

"The negro will follow the American flag wherever it may lead. There are now over 250,000 negroes in the army. The negro is intensely loyal and patriotic. In the record he has already made in the cause of freedom, responding to those purchased. Recently thieves entered the official clothing bureau at Vienna and stole hundreds of permits, with which they bought suits at $50, revealing them for $10.

Cards For Clothing Now

In Vienna—Government Has to Aid Some

The prices of clothing in Austria have now reached such an enormous figure that the government is obliged to issue a privilege to permit for the purchase of state clothing to middle class families. Persons with incomes of $3,200 are now classified with the paupers, says the New York World.

To meet their pressing needs the government is organizing special bureaus for the sale of men's suits from $2 to $70, women's coats from $32 to $67, women's suits at from $28 to $70, and waists from $2 to $15. The demand for clothing is colossal, especially among great middle classes, which is unable to pay tailors $200 for ordinary suits.

In the past six months the government has sold clothing worth $70,000,000, which will have to be paid in millions of pounds of woolen goods. The factories of Vienna and Lower Austria are busy making for winter needs. The stores must be crowded with a 10 per cent. commission.

The government warns the public that it lacks knitted goods of all kinds.

For the thousands who are unable to pay the prices quoted by the C. C. C. S. private labels have been issued by the other clothing bureaus, after requisitioning the stocks of the old clothes stores. These goods will be repaired and mended, and will be sold at $10 for overcoats and $16 for trousers.

Purchasers of state clothing must present an official permit showing that they are members of the C. C. C. S. responding to those purchased. Recently thieves entered the official clothing bureau at Vienna and stole hundreds of permits, with which they bought suits at $50, revealing them for $10.

EVERY WOMAN'S RIGHT

"To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, and nine out of every ten suffer years of agony, usually from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale thin chicks, old eyes, drooping eyelids, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak, suffering women should win the right to be well by referring to the medical dealer, who can give rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, rich, red blood is supplied in abundance by Dr. W. W. Wilson's Pink Pills which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body.

Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found a return to health, saving from anemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, rheumatism, general weakness, and those ailments from which women alone suffer. There is no painless way to health. The woman who has not found some former sufferer through the use of Dr. W. W. Wilson's Pink Pills, and this is the reason why these pills will have won a favored household remedy for more than a generation. If you are ailing and will give the pills a fair trial you will find renewed health and happiness in days.

"I have told our young negroes at Tuskegee and at Hampton to give their country all their support and backing so that those boys—black, white and red—will be ready to join when Secretary Baker, in spite of great opposition, decided to place colored troops in the same battalions with white troops.

"Surely by their loyalty in the war to destroy the negro will have earned his full share with white people of all those advantages of public education and protection which should prove so great.

"I have not raced any more than ever before because not a single negro has been arrested as a spy. Absolutely, the negroes have stood loyal to their country."

Nature's Forethought

Animals that require great speed in securing their food or escaping their enemies have strong shoulders. The shoulders are fastened to the trunk by muscles. This prevents jar after a long leap, or, in other words, if they had a collarbone, the shoulder muscles would not be. There would be a tremendous shock when an animal came to the earth after leaping. Nature has looked after it in a common sense way.

Saskatchewan Sergeant Gets Victoria Cross

Tackled Machine Gun, Emplacement Single-Handed, Threw Savagely Many Lives

Recommendations for the Victoria Cross include that of a sergeant in a Saskatchewan battalion, as follows:

"For most conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack made on the enemy's positions on August 9.

"On this N.C.O. with his platoon, was protecting the battalion's right flank, when the platoon had got lost, and, forward to the right, the platoon had not gone far when he realized that a gap had occurred in his flank, and that an enemy machine gun was firing at him. He immediately grabbed the situation, and rushing forward about 200 yards ahead of the platoon, tackled the machine gun emplacement, and, with the other men, held it off the crew, the rest retreating a hurried retreat.

"By his boldness and quick action he undoubtedly saved the lives of many of his comrades. Through his efforts the enemy was held at bay, carrying on after being wounded by shell fire.

"Another battalion had the distinction of two recommendations for the Victoria Cross, but had killed the best medicines I have ever known for the ailments of women. He admitted that he had slept in worse places than the room he was staying in, though it looked far from comfortable, but the supper he got was good, and he afterwards entered a small room behind the bar. There was a bright fire, near which he sat down. Pete went away. The strain he had borne had brought a reaction; he felt tired and slack. There was another room across the passage, and a small round table tobacco and pipe, a pipe and a large dialect and the tramp of heavy boots on boards. The door was open and men with curiously pale faces that did not look clean passed now and then. Foster thought they were soldiers and he had nothing to fear from them.

He had two or three companions, who sat around a small table and seemed by their talk to belong to a foreign community. They had treated them with some deference, if they were important people, but Foster wished they would go. He tried to examine the letters, but thought it was not safe, and he was alone since inquiries might afterwards be made about him. At length the footballers went away, and shutting the door, he turned his chair so that the company, who were in, without looking round, was not satisfactory to note, that the table would be between him and a new-comer.

Before signing the letters, he tried to collect what had happened in Graham's office. The fellow sat in front of a desk with a row of pigeon-holes and sides that prevented Foster's noting exactly what he did after he began to write. As a consequence, Foster began to tell him, if anything except the letters in the envelopes, although he had taken some papers from the safe. It looked as if Graham had been allowed to see and had not trusted him alone from the beginning. Now he probably knew he was an imposter, although this was not quite so.

Foster began to tell him, if anything except the letters in the envelopes, although he had taken some papers from the safe. It looked as if Graham had been allowed to see and had not trusted him alone from the beginning. Now he probably knew he was an imposter, although this was not quite so.

Foster carefully folded the papers and replaced them in his pocket. He must have probably failed, but he stood for agents of the man, whose business was, no doubt, the sale of the stolen bonds. He remembered Pervall the treasurer's statement that the bonds had been disposed of at a continental house, and Hutton's reluctance to advertise their loss. Well, he now had proof that Daly was, at least, a party to the theft, and, going to the bottom, he began to be more serious about it. The fellow was in his power.

He, however, hesitated a moment before opening the letter to Carmen. He was half afraid of finding her to some extent involved in the plot; and he was with relief he saw in, but not with another envelope inside the first, which he threw into the fire. The enclosed envelope was addressed to him in his name, and he thought Carmen's name would be confined to giving it to her father; or somebody else, who would pass it on. Tearing it open, he found a check on an American bank for one thousand dollars, but the name was different from that on the cover. Foster put it away and lighted his pipe.

Some of the bonds had obviously been sold; and there were a number of them in play, though it was possible that they did not all know about the Hutton tragedy. Foster understood that one could dispose of stolen securities through people who would consider the dangerous business without asking many questions if the profit were high enough.

Still he thought Graham knew, and this would give him an incentive to make him pay, and to save the money for trying to get the papers back. Indeed, Foster imagined that he was now in serious danger. Graham's run to the telephone had alarmed him.

He was carried in, and by degrees the room across the passage got quiet as its occupants went away. It had some relief that the noise had stopped, but Foster liked to go to sleep when he was alone. He was tired and began to get drowsy as he layed in front of the fire, but roused himself with an effort, for all that, he did not hear the door open, and got up with a start as a man came in. Then his alarm vanished a sympathetic alarm.

Pete stood looking at him with "I ken what ye feel," the latter remarked. "It's like meeting a keeper when ye ha'e a hare in the lining o' ye."

"Yes," said Foster, "I expect it's something like that. But where have you been?"

"I was in the toon, thought it's no' ver a big or bonnie. Then I stopped a bit in the bar o' the other hotel. Sixpence goes some way, if ye stick to beer."

"I suppose you didn't say much, if there were strangers about."

Pete grinned. "I said s' I could; about the sheep and bullocks we were going to look at Bellingham, we were not strangers in the place but a commercial who deals with the gossips and another who got a good order from the collyer. Maybe that's the reason, but the peepin' toed."

"I'm certain it is," Foster agreed. "We'll have a reckoning at the end of the journey, but here's your sixpence." Then he looked at his watch. "Well, I suppose it's time to go to bed, and you can order breakfast. We had better get off as soon as it's light."

"There's a train to Hastings at nine o'clock this morning. It might suit you to start for the station, even if you didn't get there."

"No," said Foster, "I suppose it's better to pull out by some road because you see, the train comes from Newcastle."

He went to his room, which was next to Pete's, and after putting the letters under his pillow quietly moved a chest of drawers against the door. It was a simple one, made of pine and could probably be opened by a key from any of the neighboring rooms. He was half ashamed of this, but admitted that he was getting nervous. Thereafter he had made some assessment of his chances, and had left the door leading to his pursuers, but there was a difference now. For all that, he slept soundly until he was awakened by a noise. It was dark and somebody was trying to open the door.

"Seizing his pistol, he leaned on one elbow, ready to spring out of bed, and then felt keen relief as he saw it was a knock at the door.

"Yes, it's down, thank you," said Foster, who got up, feeling angry with himself.

Tons of Luscious Oranges Are Cast Before Swine

Jamaica Orange Oil Is Made by Primitive Methods, Resulting in Great Waste

There are places in the tropics where vast quantities of the ripest, sweetest oranges are cast before swine.

This great waste of one of earth's finest foods occurs in the beautiful West Indies, of course, and is incidental to the primitive methods used by the natives in producing orange oil, now much used in this country in the making of cakes, candies and other things in the luxury line.

Before Messing was laid in ruins by the great earthquake, ten years ago Sir George Green, the British source of the plant, declared that abundant defense measures could be easily devised, such as flooding. It was at least evident that if Green had been right, the present tunnel is under the outbreak of the present war, the problem of transporting troops and supplies would have been enormously simplified.

The principle argument against the tunnel has been the possibility of an enemy getting control of it and using it for an invasion of England.

Yester evening when the plant declared that abundant defense measures could be easily devised, such as flooding.

It was at least evident that if Green had been right, the present tunnel

is under the outbreak of the present war, the problem of transporting troops and supplies would have been enormously simplified.

General Greene thinks that the tunnel could be built in three or four years. It might even be finished in two years, time for a large amount of work.

The industry is delightfully picturesque. Native girls and boys, clad in their striking var-colored costumes, carry over the hillsides huge logs, engorged with the pulp of the oranges, to the mills.

The boys shake the pulp from the fruit, while the girls, seated on the ground, extract the oil by means of primitive devices. These are simple contrivances, consisting of a hollow log with sharp points or tacks. As the oranges are lightly rolled over these tacks with the palm of the hand, the skin yields up the precious oil.

The workers may eat as many oranges as they please, but after the "fining" is completed the great bulk of the luscious ripe fruit is thrown to the pigs and other live stock.

Unadulterated orange oil has a strong aromatic and is used in the manufacture of perfumes, soaps and beverage flavorings, as well as cakes and confectionery.

The principal use for Jamaica orange oil is in the manufacture of fancy biscuits, particularly of a wafer biscuit which is used extensively with ices and cold drinks.

Thousands of Articles Repaired and Mended for Further Use

Uncle Sam has become the largest repairer of shoes and clothing in the nation. Also he does a large business in dry cleaning and pressing.

During the month of September alone at the various camps and commandments 284,111 pairs of shoes were repaired, and repairs were made to 49,150 hats, 71,496 overcoats, 48,631 pairs of breeches, 1,000 pairs of stockings, nearly a quarter of a million suits of underwear and numerous other items.

The mending jobs for the month totalled 1,184,024.

The cleaning and pressing done amounted to a little more than half a million garments. On the side, according to war department figures, a number of laundry and tailoring services were done during the month, 103,612 pieces being handled.

Tunnel Will Yet Join France and Great Britain

Cost Was Formerly Put at Eighty Million Dollars

Sir Arthur Fell, chairman of the house of commons tunnel committee, speaking at a meeting in London the other day, emphasized the importance of building the long-tunnel of railway line under the English Channel to connect the British Isles with France, and expressed the opinion that the cost of the tunnel would be approximately £80,000,000.

He said that as far as he could ascertain, the tunnel would be practicable to run trains through London to Constantinople without change. Eventually, he added, the line might be extended to Calcutta.

The tunnel is under present discussion not merely as a link in the indefinite future with distant lands and cities, but also as a means of uniting the allied countries more closely together in the years that lie immediately ahead. In the July number of the Telegraph, Major General George Green, the General

Review, gave a brief history of the tunnel scheme from its inception 116 years ago to its definitive abandonment in 1883, when Lord Wolseley, the then British Egyptian representative, had again proposed the tunnel and again it was a highly dangerous proposition.

The principle argument against the tunnel has been the possibility of an enemy getting control of it and using it for an invasion of England.

Yester evening when the plant declared that abundant defense measures could be easily devised, such as flooding.

It was at least evident that if Green had been right, the present tunnel

C. O. Gets Nervous When Wrens Come

Women are to Take Places of Men in Nearly Every Naval Station

There is a young commanding officer shivering in his shoes at a naval station because it has been told that there are "Wrens."

Women (members of the Women's Royal Naval Service) are coming to help him. This is happening at nearly every naval station where women are to go to work.

The Victory Loan

Speaking at Saskatoon, last week, Sir Tomas White, dealing with the war, stated that never in the history of the British empire had it stood in such grave peril as it did in March, 1918, when 800,000 German soldiers launched one of the greatest offensives the world had ever seen. Our troops were pushed back in an effort which had for its objective to drive the British out of France and sweeping the French clean to the sea. To-day things have changed. You know what has happened during the past few weeks. The Huns have been pushed back to the impregnable line, and this line has been made so that if Hindenburg could se it he would never recognize it. They are being pushed back to the German border, and even further than that until the Allied troops are well into German territory. This is a second Victory loan, and it is a Victory loan indeed.

Why Canada must borrow money to carry on

Because Canada has put her hand
to the plow and will not turn back.—

—our country is in the war on the side of liberty and justice and will stay in it till complete victory is won and the unspeakable Hun is smashed and beaten to the ground;

—a nation at war must make tremendous expenditures in cash to keep up her armies and supply them with munitions, food and clothing;

—Canada must finance many millions of dollars of export trade in food, munitions and supplies which Britain
and our allies must have on credit;

—for these purposes Canada must borrow hundreds of millions of dollars—

And, this money must be borrowed
from the people of Canada—

Therefore, Canada will presently come to her people for a new Victory Loan to carry on.

Canadians will loan the money by again buying Victory Bonds.

The national safety, the national honor and the national well-being require that each and every Canadian shall do his duty by lending to the nation every cent he can spare for this purpose.

Be ready when the call comes to see your country through in its great war work

Sardinian Hero Has One Hundred Wounds

Fighter on Italian Front Has Gold Medal of Valor for Bravery.

The bravest among the brave is one of Sardinia's sturdy fighters. Antonio Mangio, whose body is covered with the scars of over 100 wounds. He is decorated with the Gold Medal of Valor, which is given to anyone alive; with three Silver Medals of Valor; has been made Knight of the Crown of Italy on the battlefield; decorated by Serbia, Belgium, England, France, Italy, and having been already decorated in the Tripoli war and the Messina earthquake.

He was taken prisoner by the Austrians, but after four months at Mausoleum, he was released, rejoining army at the front. Two of his brothers have been killed in the present war.

The Bowels Must Act Healthily.
In most ailments the first care of the medical man is to see that the bowels are open and freely performing their functions. Parmentier's Vegetable Juices are so good that certain ingredients in them act on the bowels solely and they are the very best medicine available to produce healthy action of the bowels. Indeed, it is the most specific serviceable medicine in keeping the digestive organs in healthful action.

Belgian Refugees

Estimate Number of Homeless at 600,000—About 60,000 in Belgium

In England, France, Holland and Switzerland, refugees came from home, relatives and associates, approximately 600,000 Belgian refugees, according to estimates made by Lieut.-Col. Ernest P. Bicknell, director-general of relief for the American Red Cross.

In addition to the Belgian refugees in foreign countries, there are today in the small corner of Belgium still unquesched approximately 60,000 people. To those in their houses they are willing to live under conditions of extreme difficulty and in constant fear from German guns and aeroplanes.

While the Belgians today are widely scattered, it is estimated that at present there are 70,000 of them in Paris, 70,000 in London and about 30,000 in Holland. Belgian government is now operating with the American Red Cross in extending assistance in all centers where the refugees are concentrated in any numbers.

Big Seizure of Wheat Gluten

Over 1,000,000 Pounds of It Stopped On Way to Germany

Seizure by the U. S. government of 1,052,000 pounds of devitalized wheat gluten, which had never found its way to Germany through Switzerland, was announced in a statement by A. Mitchell Palmer, alias, probably, custodian. The grain, worth $1,000,000, was discovered in June in a warehouse in New York, ready for shipment overseas. It will be sold at public auction in the near future.

The custodian withheld the names of the shippers and consignees of the wheat, a product from which the Germans have been taking 14 to 15 million tons in times past. The price was 18 to 20 cents a pound, but he predicted that a much higher price would be obtained at the sale.

The wheat had been stored by a German firm.

Wheat gluten is used in the making of a diabetic foods, has a high nutritive value, and is also used in the preparation of food extracts, said the custodian.

The amount taken over represents a nine months' supply this country.

How Animals Take Gas

Masks for Horses, Dogs and Mules Have Been Manufactured.

There is probably no war in history in which animals have had such care and attention as in the present conflict. There has been a great deal of work done by experts and veterinarians have been assigned to look after horses and mules, to ensure that they are not overworked and to attend them in every way.

The use of gas by the Germans was a considerable problem for some time, as it killed many of the animals, but this fact that suitable masks were being manufactured to protect them.

Scientists were sent to the front by the Royal Agricultural Society to study this question. They report that horses suffered more from the deadly fumes than other animals. As soon as they inhaled the gas they became quite stupid and were in a state of nervous tension, that became unmanageable.

On the other hand, the mules stood their ground and appeared to close their nostrils to the gas. Dogs barked loudly and can run as fast as their legs could carry them.

In the trenches are many animals which the soldiers treasure as pets or mascots. The gas clouds rolled, cats would scream and run and scampers away. Guinea pigs would succumb at once, and after the gas had passed the eyes, would be blinded with their eyes closed. Dogs would be killed, while cats would run away. The corn, or callus, so long as it is not painful, will lift you right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't got it, tell him to order a bottle for you from our wholesale drug house.

"Blessings" of German Rule

Southern Russia to Have Liquor Traffic Forced Upon It

Apparently South Russia has yet realized to the full the "blessings" her people are to enjoy under German rule.

The late czar of Russia did not think at least when he brought liquid from the country, but evidently Germany has got an idea she can improve it, as it appears that she and Austria are going to enforce the禁酒令.

There are two hundred thousand dollars worth to dispose of, and what better than to let the Russian people have these in quest of wealth? How much of this commodity Germany herself has ready for export we do not know, but we are sure that the country expected him to have the misfortune to come under the rule of the kaiser. Happily, that is one of the dreams of the Hohenzollers, which is destined never to come true.

WOMEN! IT IS MAGICI LIFT OUT ANY CORN.

Apply a few drops then lift corn or calluses off with fingers—no pain

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this other day and named it "the kaiser's realm day" to fight the allies or make revolutions. Clothed in a coat instead of paper are reserved for the sole with money and soap is merely a memory.

The non-combatants in the cities of Germany have become resigned to the death of children from malnutrition. The old people pass away as a matter of course.

Money is sold only on a physician's prescription.

In short, the only way to survive in the kaiser's realm day is to fight the allies or make revolutions.

With this in view the impression of the Germans to town was expressed by Miss Florence MacAvoy of Montclair, N. J., who has just arrived on a Norwegian steamship. She left New York March 23.

Miss MacAvoy, who is the sister of Mrs. Ida M. Ulx, of Hoboken, went to Germany eight years ago to regard their health.

We have had in Germany since 1910, said Miss MacAvoy, who left New York March 23, just about the time the whole country was getting jubilant over the great peace offensive that was to end the war. Now we are in about that time about the success of that horrid long-distance cannon that was hurling shells into Paris and everybody I saw was happy.

They knew nothing about the hordes of Americans that was piling into France. Neither did we, because this had been most cleverly kept from us.

One of the most popular songs was most of our time in Dresden.

No one there believed that America could possibly get involved in the war.

They have been told that the U. S. would withdraw its troops away from the continent, and the few Americans that were taken prisoners were merely handled as adventurous spirits.

Farmertettes in 1776

There Were Plenty of Them During American Revolution

Farmettes have been made much by press writers as a new institution of war times. But there were plenty of them in 1776. In "Current Topics of the Town," the Philadelphia Public Ledger prints this quotation from the New England Chronicle of the date September 1776.

"Philibert—Since the departure of the able-bodied men from the forks of the Brandywine, in Chester county, in the service of their country, to prevent the evil that would follow the neglect of putting in the fall crop in season, have joined the plows and are preparing the fallows and the land for the winter, and the brothers and lovers be detained abroad in defense of the liberties of these States, they are determined to put in the crop themselves—a very laudable example, and highly worthy of imitation."

A pretty home wedding took place on the evening of Thanksgiving day, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, who resides 13 miles north of Cereal, when their daughter, Miss Mary Scott Sutherland became the bride of Mr. John Jack, manager of the Cereal branch of the Union Bank. On account of the recent bereavement the wedding was very quiet. The Rev. Mr. Westphal tied the nuptial knot. Both the bride and the groom are popular young people, and their many friends wish them every happiness and prosperity. After their honeymoon the happy couple will make their home in Cereal.

Buy Continued Prosperity

Before our last Victory Loan financial experts were dubious as to the outlook for Canada. She could not borrow abroad. It was necessary that she have a large available capital to finance credits for British and foreign war orders. Canada was thrown on her own resources and appealed to her citizens.

The remarkable oversubscription of the 1917 Victory Loan completely changed the uncertain outlook which prevailed. It gave a new impetus to agriculture, commerce and prosperity. It invigorated our efforts in war. It allowed our provincial governments, municipal and other borrowers to finance their requirements at home. In short, it gave another lease of life to the activities of the Dominion.

The Victory Loan of 1918 will accomplish the same purposes. Upon the ready response of the large and small investor depends the immediate economic future of Canada. Everyone's prosperity is involved.

Prepare to buy continued prosperity in Victory Bonds

Help Beats Talk

These are glorious days. Victory is in the air, but there is some distance to go yet. Everybody is talking about Victory. That's all right, but are they all helping to make Victory complete?

The one way most of us can help is by Thrift and Sacrifice. We help whenever we sacrifice any whim or taste in order to Save; when we Save to Lend for Victory.

To make her share in victory complete, Canada will need the backing of ALL her citizens. Those who cannot fight can Lend. They cannot lend unless they Save. They cannot adequately Save unless they Sacrifice.

Talk if you like but Help! Sacrifice to Save; Save to Lend!

MONEY TO LOAN

Osler, Hammond and Nanton, general agents for North of Scotland and other Mortgage Companies have $30,000,000 invested in farm loans in the West, the returns from which they re-invest in the same way. They have lots of money now. Their Inspector, Mr. Stickney, who was in the district a few days ago, says that if you have a farm and that no good loan will be refused.

Let them renew the loan you have on your homestead, and give you more on your pre-emption, give you money to prove it if you wish. Or let them give you a new loan, as large and probably larger, than you can get elsewhere. The district needs help in this way. Pay up your indebtedness to the bank, to the municipality, to the school, and to others. We can furnish the money. Loans for five years, repayable in three years, without extra charge. Interest at 8 per cent—nothing but the interest to pay each year.
